CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

CONCLUSION

This chapter presents the conclusion and suggestions regarding this analysis. The main points that have been analyzed in the previous chapter will be shortly re-explained in conclusion. Meanwhile, suggestions will show the writer's ideas related to this analysis.

5.1 Conclusion

After doing the analysis, the writer found some moral values. They are courage, care, honesty, perseverance, and respect. In appearance, there are one sample of courage and three sample of perseverance. In words, there are four samples of care, two samples of perseverance, and one sample of respect. In thoughts, there are three samples of care, one sample of honesty, three samples of perseverance, and one sample of respect. In actions, there are two samples of care, three samples of courage, and six samples of perseverance. In how other characters treat about this character, there are only two samples of respect. Therefore, perseverance is one value which is often revealed in the main character.

Those moral values are used as a standard for people's characterization. In modern life, many people forget about moral values in the society. It makes their morality being broken. Moreover, people's behavior determines their life in bad or good. Hemingway reveals the characteristic of Santiago in indirect characterization. He communicates those moral values in Santiago's appearance, words, thoughts, actions, and how other characters treat him. Those five attributes reveal Santiago's character as the main character.

5.2 Suggestion

This study, as the writer is aware of, is very limited in terms of scope, subject and methodology. Although this analysis is based on some experts' theories, the findings are taken out with the influence of personal judgment.

Having done the research, the writer would like to give some suggestions concerning the moral values. Firstly, it would be useful for the lecturers of the English Department if they use this thesis as the examples of moral values when they are teaching about literature or other related subjects. Hopefully, students can apply moral values in their life. Secondly, it is for students of the English Department to make further study in analyzing moral values. Hopefully, it can help them when reading English novels which contain various moral values. At last, this analysis can at least be a comparison for any studies in the same field.
