

CHAPTER V

Conclusion and Suggestion

Conclusion

From the analysis of The Metamorphosis in the previous chapter, it is obvious that the basic problem comes out is the communication. Between the main character and the others, there is not any good relationship. He has to work from early in the morning to late at night for the family. He is really a tough guy.

Basically, it is possible for them to improve the relationship as far as the family respects the main character. The family should pay much attention to him. This matter may help them live in harmony.

From the discussion in The Metamorphosis, the characterization of the story is quite important as it is complex and variant to read. Each serves various kinds of characteristics. One's is different from the others'. There is a good man and there is the evil one. To imitate a character's behavior in a story for any reader is easy, but to describe the kind of any person needs an exact skill.

Suggestion

It is advisable for the reader to know the background of the literary work since literature belongs to the life aspects. Concerning to the teaching and learning of literature, it is suggested that the general knowledge of literature is given to the students as referring to what the writer has got in the introduction to literature class, no satisfying basis of understanding literature was given. Since then, he could not join the class well.

Related to the teaching-learning process, the students are suggested to consider the class for enjoyment, without neglecting the seriousness of literature analysis. To arise the students' interest in literature, retelling story is important for them. For the next step, if they are interested in it already, the teacher may give some questions about characters, theme, setting, and so on.
