ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The first and the most prominent gratitude is addressed to God Almighty in the name of Jesus Christ for His help all this time so that I am able to finish the final task in my study. Also because His love and mercy has protected and blessed me to write this thesis, for without my God this thesis would not have been finished well. It is difficult to describe how His support means. My special thanks and gratitude also goes to the following persons:

1. Dr. A. Ngadiman, my thesis writing advisor. Deep thanks for your enormous help, careful correction, patience, guidance, and hospitality. I could not think of a better word to express my gratitude to you for believing in me and being one of a kind advisor, way above and beyond the call of duty.
2. Ms. Naning, Sir Ghaniv, Mr. Heroe G., who provided valuable computer facility patiently and helped me to type this thesis very well.
3. I also wish to thank Tunghai Chiang who deserves special appreciation for his help in lending me a tape recorder and giving thorough attention for ever sustaining and supporting me in a personal way.
4. My fabulous teachers and friends at the Faculty of Teacher Training in Widya Mandala Catholic University who have given me the never-to-be forgotten moments and memories of all time.

5. My dear parents to whom this thesis is especially dedicated to. I could not have possibly made my thesis if it is not because of their love and support. I am grateful as well for the spiritual support I got during the writing of this thesis, since they have always been there for me in time of troubles.

I will not pretend that I could have managed to write this thesis without the support that was so generously given by all concerned. The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with them and may God bless them exceedingly and abundantly.

ABSTRACT

Indarwulan, Rera. 1999. STUDY ON THE TENDENCY OF PEOPLE TO SPEAK MORE THAN ONE FOREIGN LANGUAGES

Thesis, Program Studi Pendidikan Bahasa Inggris, FKIP
Universitas Katolik Widya Mandala Surabaya

Advisor : Dr. A. Ngadiman

Key words : Multilingualism, Tendency, Foreign Language

This study examines the people who have a tendency to speak some foreign languages.

The writer collected the data by using a Walkman tape recorder as the audio recording and a list of questions. The data are gathered from the fourth subjects, using a list of questions that has been prepared by the writer. And then she clarifies the results and analyzed it by having observation at their social background. She also analyzed the data based on the parameters (setting, participant, relationship, topic and the function of interaction).

Based on the analysis, the writer found out that in the results of data analysis showed there were some factors of similarities and also some factors of differences among the subjects in obtaining a new foreign language. She also describes the occasion of the foreign language used by the four subjects using parameters.

Since this study is limited in terms of the number of subjects, the place where the study was conducted, and the data used, it is far from being perfect. That is why the writer would like to suggest that the next research would be much better and more sophisticated.
