ABSTRACT

Tanzil, Amelia Shanti Devi. 2007. Developing an Audio-Visual Listening Supplementary Materials for Elementary Six Students S-1 thesis, English Department, Faculty of Teacher Training and Education, Widya Mandala Catholic University, Surabaya.

Despite the great enthusiasm of learning and teaching English to young learners, the teaching materials in the market still lack of quality and comprehensive ones. One of the examples is Dra. Rita Kurniawan's "Go with English" textbook that is used in some elementary schools in Indonesia. Therefore, the writer would like to develop an audio-visual supplementary materials based on the textbook.

Audio-visual supplementary materials is quite familiar and interesting for young learners nowadays since their daily activities are only few steps away from televisions, video games, play stations and other audio visual equipments. Therefore, this audio visual materials is made to complete Dra. Rita Kurniawan's "Go with English" textbook with interesting materials in teaching-learning activities.

Steps taken to develop the materials are taking notes on the objectives of each lesson in the textbook, creating short stories based on the objectives, looking for some friends who could act the stories, and dubbing the video in each lesson. This last step is to produce clearer sound in the audio-visual materials which is the most important aspect in listening materials.

The result of the project is in the form of a DVD which consists of seven lessons. Each lesson is made based on the lessons in Dra. Rita Kurniawan's "Go With English" textbook. The DVD is also accompanied by two booklets. One booklet is for the teachers and one is for the students. The booklet for teachers contains all of the scripts and questions in each lesson, and the booklet for students is in the form of students' workbook.

Since this DVD in teaching listening is still in the form of a prototype which has not been tested, the writer only judges its suitability from the questionnaires distributed to some experts, who are some English department lecturers.
